ABOUT

Isacco Emiliani (1991) is an Italian photographer and videomaker, his work is based on long-term projects, often expressed in artistic form, which describe the environment and the relationship between man and nature.

He regularly works on commissioned projects oriented towards sustainability, protection and conservation with institutions, schools, profit and non-profit entities, and since 2021 with the Immagine Terra project he has been creating immersive photographic workshops. Since 2016 he has been the author of the independent and continuous project Arctic Visions, a series composed of several collections to tell the story of the Arctic regions, raising awareness of their great beauty and fragility with images (White Finland, 2017; Prehistoric Norway, 2018; Native Alaska, 2019; No Man's Land Svalbard, 2020; Lost in Grønland, 2023).

In 2022 he published Ottantuno (ed. Nutsforlife), an art book in a limited series of 501 copies, with a preface by Jane Goodall dedicated to monumental trees encountered in seven years of night walks spent together with his grandfather Tonino.
